It has been an honor to participate in this year’s Fellows program. A well-selected mix of colleagues from business, law, academia, military, diplomatic, education, and not-for-profit organizations provided diverse perspectives and dialogues. Our speakers explored topics such as nuclear proliferation, the future of global trade, threats to the “liberal international order,” relations with other countries, and counter-terrorism policy, among others. Overall, a thoughtful and stimulating engagement in contemporary problems with people who care about the fate of our country and the world.” – Tom Lombardo, Baird